The City of Sydney has put up 545 banners around inner Sydney celebrating the season. The banners have been designed to reflect the many ethnic groups that make up the community of Sydney and wish "Seasons Greetings" in nine different languages: English, Spanish, Korean, Traditional Chinese, Simplified Chinese, Russian, Vietnamese, Indonesian, and Greek.

The City also partners CBD retailers to encourage Christmas celebrations. In November, the sixth annual "Christmas In the City" magazine was produced with Fairfax newspapers to promote Christmas activities, gift ideas, transport information, trading hours, church services, recipe suggestions and Christmas stories.

This early in the season, many retailers have embraced Christmas with stunning internal decorations such as at the QVB and I encourage all Sydneysiders to visit and enjoy these sensational decorations.

Our festive celebrations extend into January with celebrations for New Year's Eve, the spectacular Sydney Festival and then Chinese New Year in February.

NOTE The British government had sent out town planners to Funafuti in 1960 to guide development of the increasing crowded urban settlement and in 1973, following a major cyclone, it constructed new housing at Funafuti. By 1993, when George Clarke visited Tuvalu to carry out his survey, the Tuvalu government was lobbying for new houses. George Clarke, is an architect and town planner by profession, who has worked as a consultant on human settlements for the World Bank, United Nations, AusAID and others. He was concerned about the slumming down of Pacific communities and consequent health decay. His report addresses these problems and tries to stimulate cultural revival and eco-tourism. (George Clarke's father, William Clarke, had helped established the Bitapaka wireless station, near Rabaul, in 1924 and subsequently became Manager of AWA Australia-Pacific Radio, making many trips back to New Guinea.)

INFORMATION FOR OWNERS OR CUSTODIANS OF MATERIALS TO BE MICROFILMED

1. Microfilming The Bureau arranges for microfilming, either by a Bureau field officer or a commercial micrographics company, at no cost to the owner or custodian of the original material.
2. Originals The Bureau does not purchase, or retain possession of, material for copying; original material is returned to the owner or custodian when copying is complete.
3. Copy of microfilm(s) for owner or custodian The owner or custodian, whether an individual or an institution, receives a copy of all resulting microfilm reels. If the owner or custodian does not wish to keep the reel(s) the Bureau is happy to advise and assist in the donation of the reel(s) to a library or archive - preferably in the Pacific Island country to which the material pertains.
4. Other copies: distribution to sponsoring libraries The Bureau is the sole distributor of microfilm copies from the master negative. Copies of all microfilms produced in each year (except those to which access is closed) are deposited with the sponsoring libraries, who undertake to observe any restrictions imposed on the material (see point 6 below).
5. Other copies: sale Copies are made available for sale to other institutions and individuals at a price which recovers expenses, including postage and handling. The Bureau is a non-profit organisation.
6. Access restrictions Owners or custodians may impose access restrictions if they feel the material is particularly sensitive. Various types of access conditions may apply to part or all of the material to be microfilmed :

i) Open access, distribution and sale The material will be made available to readers without restriction. It will distribute a copy of the microfilm(s) to each of its sponsoring libraries (currently six). On request, the Bureau will supply a copy of the microfilm(s) or a paper copy to other institutions or individuals. Institutions that hold a copy of the microfilm(s) will, on request, supply paper photocopies of extracts of the microfilm(s); such photocopies are permitted under copyright legislation for research purposes only.

ii) Restricted access for reference For a specified period of time, the microfilm(s) will not be available for reference without the written permission of the owner or custodian or his/her personal representative. However, the Bureau will distribute a copy of the microfilm(s) to each of its sponsoring libraries. Access to the microfilm(s) will not be permitted by a sponsoring library unless prior written approval has been granted by the owner or custodian (or his/her personal representative) to a reader, which may or may not include permission to make paper photocopies. No microfilm copies or paper copies will be supplied by the Bureau to other persons or institutions without prior written approval from the owner or custodian or his/her personal representative.

iii) Closed access For a specified period of time, the material will not be available by the Bureau for reference, distribution or sale.

Any such restrictions are strictly observed by the Bureau and its sponsoring libraries, to which copies of microfilms are normally sent (unless access is closed). Requests for access to restricted papers are referred to the owner or custodian or his/her representative; requests for access to closed collections are not normally referred for any further consideration.

7. Authors of unpublished documents such as letters, manuscripts, organisational records, etc., are protected by the provisions of the Copyright Act 1980. Copyright remains with the author of a particular document. Copyright law allows photocopies to be made for the purposes of research only (i.e. permission to quote or publish must be obtained from the copyright holder). A person to whom a letter is sent is its legal owner and may dispose of it as he or she chooses. Australian copyright legislation is currently under review

8. The Bureau makes no editorial additions or changes to any material copied and reminds all users of their obligation to observe current copyright regulations.

The Bureau is happy to answer queries on any of the above.
